UFODATA Comment.

I have seen many hoax attempts in my long association with the UFO subject and if someone is going to try to hoax a sighting it is normally a couple of friends who take on the task.

There have been many releases of home made hot air balloons but these tend to be short lived affairs and launching one or two balloons is about the best one can achieve. This sighting however consisted of some 50 or so objects that appear to flash lights or change colour during the flight.

Travelling West to East the objects were observed for about four minutes.
